

The Cancer Registry of Norway's survey on working environment and health among petroleum offshore workers

During the spring 2022, the Cancer Registry of Norway will invite offshore workers who have travelled offshore by helicopter to participate in a survey on working environment and health.

Invitations with an electronic link to the survey, will be sent by email or SMS.

Invitations will be sent out in several rounds. If you have not received an invitation by email or SMS by the end of May, you will be given the opportunity to participate via a link to the survey, which will be made available on our website.

Data from the survey will be used to study the relationship between exposures in the working environment offshore and health.

Your participation is important as the quality of the research rests on the number of participants. We therefore strongly encourage you to respond to the survey. Your responses will be treated as strictly confidential.
